

GIRLS KILLED IN RUSH FROM FIRE.

Twelve Trampled in Stampede of Two Hundred Workers, Reported Victims of Flames—Three Bodies Taken from Ruins and Nine Others Said to Be in Debris—Twenty Injured Jumping from Fire Escapes.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Probably a dozen persons perished in a fire that broke out this afternoon in the mill of H. M. Rosenblatt & Co., manufacturers of leather goods, Second and Oxford streets, and destroyed that plant and several adjoining properties, including the Third Reformed Presbyterian Church.

Three bodies were taken from the ruins an hour after the flames were under control, and the firemen say that at least nine more are under the debris.

Over twenty persons were hurt, some by jumping from the fire escapes, while others were trampled upon in a mad rush for safety. These are in the hospitals, and of the number, one, a girl, is sure to die.

The fire started in the celluloid department of the leather works. Within ten minutes the entire plant was ablaze. The fire-escapes proved inadequate to afford exit to the employees working within.

There were two hundred girls at work

when the fire was discovered and immediately a stampede was made for the fire-escapes. Many were knocked down and trampled upon and others on reaching the fire-escapes, despite the shouts of the people in the streets, plunged to the pavement.

The girls remaining on the fire-escapes were carried in safety to the street by firemen.

Some of the girls, left unconscious in the building, were burned to death.

There was a panic in the vicinity of the fire, some of those who escaped the blaze running about frenzied in the crowd. The police took care of these and restored order, while the injured were taken to the hospitals.

The firemen, by good work, had the blaze out within an hour. The loss was $200,000.

At the hospitals it was said that all the injured would recover, with the exception of one girl, who was fatally burned before being rescued from a fire-escape.

A Cyclone Coming.

A West Indian cyclone, increasing in force as it advances, is threatening the Atlantic coast. To-day it is gallivanting along the Florida coast, and the Washington signal service has sent out warnings of its approach. There is no telling at this stage whether the West Indian atmospheric disturber will strike local parts.

GIRL IMMIGRANT HELD PRISONER. WIDOW WANTS THE ENTIRE ESTATE.

Capt. O'Reilly Hears a Sad Story from Her When Found on the Street—Complaint Being Investigated.

When Capt. Vredenburg, late of the Oak street police station, was telling the Brooklyn reporters to-day that he was not aware of the existence of a single disorderly house in his old precinct when he was commander, Capt. O'Reilly had heard a sad story of a girl who had been kept in a house on Cherry street. The house is alleged to have been in existence for years.

The girl victim who related the story to Capt. O'Reilly was taken from Ellis Island two years ago by a man who offered her a good position. He lodged her in the Cherry street house, where she was kept a prisoner.

The girl is Tessie Ahearn, twenty years old. She says she was born in County Sligo, New York, and the first glimpse of New York she obtained was when she was being taken to the Cherry street house, she declares, by the man who had lured her there.

She would not now be free, she said to-day, but the proprietor of the house had become alarmed over the presence of a new captain in the precinct and had ordered all of the women in the house left the street she was found wandering about.

The girl has been turned over to the Commissioner of Charities.

Capt. O'Reilly is investigating her story.

SHE FLED FROM SMALL-POX. Exposure to Disease.

The Brooklyn police have been asked by the Health Officers to look for Miss Louise Barton, of Henry street, who, it is believed, was exposed to small-pox.

She had been visiting the family of James Bennett, in Elm Park, Port Richmond, N. J., until yesterday, when a doctor learned that Mr. Bennett and his daughter Lizzie had small-pox. Then, it is said, she hurriedly left the house and went to her home.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WASHINGTON PARK, BROOKLYN, June 13.—The St. Louis team, led by their handsome captain-manager, Patsy Donovan, made their first appearance of the season in this borough this afternoon. The Cardinals are to play three games with the Brooklyn. Although the day was an ideal one for baseball, both the players and rooters suffered from the heat.

The Brooklyn are confident they will take all three games from the visitors, as they look upon Patsy Donovan's crowd as the easiest they have tackled in some time.

Donovan, however, does not regard the Brooklyn as such a powerful aggregation, and before the game he said to the writer:

"This team I have, although not as great an aggregation as Pittsburgh, is as strong as any other club in the League. But we have been unfortunate. We have lost more games by one run than any club in the League. I think we will take two from the Brooklyn in spite of their present winning streak."

Donovan selected the famous O'Neill battery to occupy the points for his team, Mike O'Neill doing the slab work, while J. O'Neill was the receiver. Kitson, who has won the last seven games he pitched for the Brooklyn, was selected to fool the Cardinals. When the game began there were less than 1,200 rooters present.

First Inning.

Farrell opened the game by striking out. Donovan faced a grounder to Flood and was the second victim. Smoot's fast grounder was taken care of by Flood and McCreery. No runs were scored.

Dolan was hit by pitched ball and reached second on Keeler's sacrifice. Sheppard walked. McCreery doubled, scoring Dolan. Sheppard also tried to score but was caught by Rucker on the throw. Flood struck out. No runs.

Second Inning.

Sheppard got Barclay's drive. Kruger singled and went to second on Brashear's single. Hartman flied out by Flood and was the second victim. Smoot's fast grounder was taken care of by Flood and McCreery. No runs were scored.

Dolan was hit by pitched ball and reached second on Keeler's sacrifice. Sheppard walked. McCreery doubled, scoring Dolan. Sheppard also tried to score but was caught by Rucker on the throw. Flood struck out. No runs.

Third Inning.

M. O'Neill hit a grounder to Kitson and at first J. O'Neill flied out by Flood and McCreery. Farrell sent a fly to Sheppard. Only three balls were pitched.

Kitson struck out. Dolan did the same thing. Keeler made a pretty hit, but was caught by Rucker on the throw. Flood struck out. No runs.

Fourth Inning.

Donovan drew a base on balls and reached second on Smoot's sacrifice. Barclay bunted, filling the bases. Kruger singled, scoring Donovan and Smoot. Brashear sacrificed. Hartman fouled out.

The suit of Mrs. Eva E. Conlon, widow of James P. Conlon, against the executor and legatees of her husband's will, went on before Justice Stecker in the Supreme Court this afternoon. The defendants are the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin for the Protection of Desolate Children, the Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor, and many other institutions. Michael J. Dwyer, the executor, is also named as a defendant.

The will left all of the estate to the institutions and a few persons, but did not mention the widow. The instrument was dated in 1877, and Conlon married subsequent to the making of the will.

Mrs. Conlon contested the will and was awarded her dower of the income County Sings. Not satisfied with the decision, she filed a bill in equity to set aside the agreement and to have the estate of her husband placed in a trust for her life, by which she would receive the entire estate upon her death, provided she rendered him service and cared for him as long as he should live.

She alleges that she fulfilled her contract, but that Conlon made a new will, leaving the property to her, as he had promised.

Several of his ribs were fractured and it is believed that he was internally injured. The passengers in the crowded trolley car were almost in a panic.

STRANGE DELAY OF AN AMBULANCE.

A man fell from the third floor through the elevator shaft at No. 189 Pearl street this afternoon and was fatally injured. There was a delay in the arrival of the ambulance from the Hudson Street Hospital, the people at the hospital refusing to respond to the first call. Capt. Fred Engelsberg, of No. 134 West One Hundred and Third street, was held in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Zeller in the Tombs Court to-day on a charge of stealing jewelry valued at $2,000 from Charles M. Jacobs. Engelsberg was employed by Mr. Jacobs as his chauffeur in Garden City, L. I. Last Sunday Mr. Jacobs went away and ordered the chauffeur to meet him at the station in the evening. The machine, much disabled, was there, but no chauffeur. When Mr. Jacobs reached his house he found that it had been ransacked and $2,000 worth of jewelry stolen. The detectives recovered most of the property.

FATHER BEATS MAN WHO TRIED TO ABDUCT GIRL.

Francis and two detectives were near at hand when Carney walked up to the child the meeting having been prearranged. Before the detectives could stop him he had beaten Carney's face to a pulp. It was all the detectives could do to save Carney's life. Carney was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

POLY GROUNDS, N. Y., June 13.—Cincinnati's luckless coterie of ball players were the Giants' foes this afternoon. George Smith was glad to see them, for he could figure out nothing but three straight victories for his team. The Giants want all the games they can get these days. Their aim is to climb back into the favor of the fans and incidentally up the League percentage column.

If they could not wallop John T. Brush's cosmopolitan crowd they could surely be ranked as "false alarms" in the baseball world. They knew it, too, but at that they were not underrating the visitors in the least. George Smith had read a little primer story to them about the turning of the worm, and then followed a little speech in which he said that the uncertainty of baseball makes any team possible winners, and so it was that the boys were out on the green in the white uniforms very early.

Giants Lined 'Em Out.

They have all come to regard themselves as something pretty fair in the hitting line, owing to their good work of yesterday, and, fearful lest they lose their good eyes, they started in at batting practice. Even Frank Sparks smashed out liners that would be safe in a game, and all hands looked decidedly satisfied with themselves.

When the first practice signal was given Manager Smith did not have any news to tell and as might be inferred by the batting order. The day did not mark the arrival of any new men. Jack Hendricks, who was stamped "O. K." in the field again and the way he chased the ball and got them made Pett out his eyes in wonderment. He never says much about players, but he did remark to Smith that New York had a fine right fielder.

The Giants had a score to settle with the Henies. When they visited the porkopolian town they expected four victories, but realized only one-quarter of the number. It was very inhospitable treatment at that, and the Smithians said they would be just as rude during this series. Fans have to be shown, though. They like to hear the players predicting victories for themselves, still better do they like to see the results.

Henies at Practice.

Luckless was what the Henies were. Well, their fifteen minutes practice gave a little example of their unhappy lot. Magoon and Dobbs were trying to show the fans how they can get hard hit by balls. They both ran for one and met with a crash. Down they went for long enough to be counted. They went a hundred times, according to rules laid down by the "Mie Marquis of Queensberry." When they were revived a rest was given them that they might get wind enough to play the game. In the home game, Corcoran and Manager McPhee did not let collision of their men interfere with their play. Of picking a slab artist, "Noodle" Hahn, he of the mighty left arm, looked "the goods" in the end.

BOTTOM DROPS OUT OF PARK ROW.

Section of Roadway at City Hall Caves In and Paving Stones Fall into Subway—Danger Declared Slight.

The dangerous extent to which Park Row, at City Hall, has been undermined for the subway operations was startlingly illustrated this afternoon when several paving stones dropped from eight feet carrying down with them a ton of earth which fell into the subway.

The sudden disappearance of the stones and earth left a huge hole directly between the car tracks. When a Madison avenue car went whirling past the ground shook threateningly, and the car was thrown off its track.

Workmen were at once sent to explore the extent of the cave in. One of the men who crawled into the hole climbed several paving stones to the top, and said, "There's no bottom to it."

The danger is explained to an Evening World reporter that there existed no danger of the entire street caving in. It is trusted that the workmen will be able to fill the cavity in a few days. A group of workmen, laborers at work beneath the spot where the ground went out of sight, happily escaped injury from the falling paving stones.

GRAVESSEND RACE TRACK, N. Y., June 13.—This was a very dry day at Gravesend and the crowd came down prepared to share in the juicy good things. There is a tradition that on the last day of the meeting bottled-up good things are cut loose, but as a rule matters are generally the reverse and favorites win.

The attendance was large. The weather was in its most charming mood and the track was fast.

There was no stake feature, at the Gravesend race track, which is a pity. A distinguished visitor at the track this afternoon was Mr. John Roberts, champion billiard player of England, who is ending a two years' tour of the world. He sails for England in a few days.

MONEY AS AID IN TRACING MARQUIS.

No tidings of Marquis de Cordova having been received since he was reported to be a French detective, brought here to aid the Marquis in recovering his stolen title to a Spanish estate worth $20,000,000, announces that a reward of $50 will be paid for information leading to the finding of the missing man.

Marquis de Cordova is said to have been kidnapped from No. 58 East Eighty-sixth street, last Saturday.

The detective says he has received cable instructions from a brother-in-law of the Marquis, who is in Italy, to offer the reward.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 13.—A case strikingly similar to the Florence Burns-Walter Brooks murder mystery in New York came to light here to-day, when the body of S. H. Pallen, of Dayton, O., was found in a room in the Boston Hotel.

Pallen registered at the hotel last night at a late hour with a beautiful woman as "J. W. Johnson, and wife, Cleveland." The woman has disappeared. No one saw her leave the hotel, and her identity is shrouded in mystery.

Pallen died from poison. Indications point to murder, but it may be a case of suicide. The quantity of poison was remarkable and leads to the belief that the man did not take it voluntarily.
